

Opportunities

Calendar

March 16

Registrations due for BusinessWeek/Architectural Record Awards.

March 17

Washington, D.C.

Opening of "The Architecture of Reassurance: Designing the Disney Theme Parks," at the National Building Museum. Open until August 5. Call (202) 272-2445 or visit www.nbm.org/exhibits.

March 19–24

Los Angeles

"Technology and Persons with Disabilities" 16th annual international conference, sponsored by the Center on Disabilities at California State University, Northridge. Call (818) 677-2578 or visit www.csun.edu/codtraining. (Web site also carries listings for related seminars.)

March 21–24

Medford, Mass.

"Building Energy 2001," the conference and trade show for renewable energy and green building professionals. Sponsored by the Massachusetts Renewable Energy Trust, hosted by the Tufts University Climate Initiative, and organized by the Northeast Sustainable Energy Association (NESEA); AIA CES credits are offered. Call (413) 774-6051 or visit the Building Energy pages at www.nesea.org.

April 20–24

Baltimore

"2001: A Roofing Odyssey," the 16th international convention and trade show of the Roof Consultants Institute. Program registered for AIA continuing education credit. Call 800-828-1902 or visit www.RCI-Online.org.

Remember the AIA national convention,

May 17–19 in Denver.

Visit www.aiaconvention.com or call (202) 626-7396.

May 19

Oak Park, Ill.

Twenty-seventh annual Wright Plus Housewalk, sponsored by the Frank Lloyd Wright Preservation Trust, featuring nine private homes and two public landmarks designed by Wright. Proceeds help fund the trust's programs. Call (708) 848-1976 or visit www.wrightplus.org.

June 18–19

Chicago

A/E/C Systems 2001 conference and exhibition, "where technology means business." Call 800-451-1196 or visit www.aecsystems.com.

June 19–22

Rochester, N.Y.

ASTM Committee E12 on Color and Appearance meeting. For more information or a copy of the agenda, contact Bode Hennegan, (610) 832-9740 or bhennega@astm.org.

September 17–21

Orlando

Fifth international Biomass Conference of the Americas, organized by the U.S. departments of Energy and Agriculture, Natural Resources Canada, and the National Renewable Energy Laboratory. Call (321) 638-1014, or visit www.nrel.gov/bioam.

Where does "good design"
meet
the "bottom line"?

Right here.

Clients and architects who collaborate to solve diverse business challenges should get what they deserve — an award of international standing. The Annual Business Week/Architectural Record Awards, sponsored by The American Institute of Architects, honors the achievement of business goals through architecture and distinguished collaboration between clients and architects.

Judges include major business leaders and renowned architects. Categories include interiors, new construction or renovation projects with budgets ranging from under $1 million to $25 million plus. Award recipients are featured in both Business Week and Architectural Record, read by more than six million of the most influential people in business and design.

Get what you deserve. For registration information, call 888-242-4240. Outside the U.S., call 202-626-7463. Or go to www.aia.org. Register by March 16, 2001. Submissions must be postmarked by April 18, 2001.

BusinessWeek

THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF ARCHITECTS

ARCHITECTURAL RECORD